A change was made in the R. I. schedule last Sunday as was predicted last week. No. 33 and No. 34 will stop and turn here. This will leave the cars here to be cleaned every day, and will make this a passenger terminal for those trains. A number of people are thus forced to stop in Liberal and the hotel men here have not been complaining at all because of the change.

One of the most pleasant stag functions of the year occurred Wednesday evening when Herbert Hobbie entertained a few gentlemen friends with a smoker at his home at 102 Grant Ave., for Mr. J. A. Maddox of Klamath Falls, Oregon, who has been his guest here for the past few days. At the close of the evening a dainty lunch was served. Those present were, J. E. George, C. E. Woods, Frank McWilliams, F. V. Cason, D. A. Henry, J. W. Baughman, R. E. Summers, Gene Perkins, Fred Evans, I. B. Jordan, R. T. Nichols, Walter Ford and E. J. Thayer.

Thursday afternoon a number of the followers of Isaac Walton loaded up their fishing poles, provisions and blankets in three automobiles and started on a fishing trip to Coldwater Creek, in south Texas county. It was quite dusty and windy, but a little sixty mile drive didn't stop the bunch. In fact, they didn't even hesitate. C. E. Woods drove the new E. M. F., and Chas. Ellsaesser took a load in the big Mitchell, while Mel Postlewaite took a car full of provisions for the party. The other members of the gang were James Cavanaugh, H. W. Lane, C. D. Gasaway, Chas. Taylor, L. A. Etzold, W. H. Feather, Ray Mill and Dr. R. T. Nichols. They expect to return Friday or Saturday or Sunday, or whenever they get ready to come back.

Wednesday was Ruth Black's birthday and a number of her little friends and her first teacher in Liberal were invited to come at 6 o'clock and help Ruth celebrate. At 8:30 Mrs. Black took Ruth and her guests to the Photoplay where a pleasant hour was passed. The invited guests were Rose George, Mary Kennedy, Margaret Etzold, Velma Craig, Mildred Hancock, Flo Wimmer, Ruth McMullen, Chorda Buchanan, Hilda Spradling, Miss Catherine Wright and Mrs. Todd. Each guest remembered Ruth with flowers, books, cards, beauty pins, handkerchiefs, games and a dainty little cream pitcher. As the good bye's were said all wished Ruth many happy returns of the day.

A recent report of the Carnegie foundation states that, on the average, recitation rooms in American colleges and universities are not used more than four hours a day. Governor Stubbs last week addressed letters to Chancellor Strong of the University of Kansas, and other heads of the state educational institutions, asking for a report on the number of hours per day rooms are in use in the state schools of higher education in Kansas. The data compiled by the Chancellor in reply shows that recitation rooms at the University of Kansas are used on an average 7.2 hours per day, nearly twice as much as the average for the United States. The reports from the State Normal and Agricultural School show about the same average of use. The attendance at the state schools of higher education has greatly increased within recent years and a crowded condition of the buildings has resulted, which the erection of additional buildings has only partially relieved.
